

LIST OF FIGURES AND TABLES

Figures

1. Brands are at a “Bifurcation Point” Today, and as Chaos and Complexity Theory Suggests, could Show both Deterministic and Probabilistic Behavior
2. Breakdown of Different Brand Types over a Corporation’s “Total Brand Concept”
3. Brands’ Exponential Evolutionary Pace
4. Share of Brand Values in the Total Company Value, by Sector/Industry
5. Topology of the “Known Unknowns” Undermining the Future of Brands
6. Complexity and “Strange Attractors” Can Produce Highly Improbable Results, Leading to Unreasonable Business Successes and Extreme Brands
7. Brands’ Impact on Total Return to Shareholders is Almost Insignificant, at 1,5% p.a.
8. The Virtual Money Game: How Valuable is a “Brand” Algorithm?
9. European Inequality Lower in the World
10. US Losing Favor Across Europe and the West
11. The Polarization Effect and the Vanishing Middle Market
12. Internet: The Fastest Growing Advertising Medium
13. Brand TV Advertising: Diminishing Power in the Attention Economy
14. Media Conglomerates Concentration Power
15. Consumers’ de-massification and Eclecticism Leads to the “Long Tail”
16. A Psychoanalytic Road Map to the Death of the Arrogant Brand
17. The Brands’ Evolution Over Time
18. A Brand Retrospective—Pattern of Migration (Typical Examples)
19. Brands in Fragments—The Emerging Ecosystem
20. The World’s 10 Most Reputable Companies-2006
21. The World’s 50 Most Reputable European Brands—By Country 2006

22. European Brands are Outperforming their US Rivals Worldwide in Almost All Sectors
23. The Scissor Effect (Easterlin Paradox):
24. Satisfaction with Life and Income (Per Capita, 1958-1991/Japan)
25. The Secret Paths to Depression in a Brand, Materialistic, Culture
26. Depression Probability, by Age
27. The Affect of Activities
28. Corruption is Bad for National Happiness
29. Danes: Inequality Down, Happiness Up

Table

1. Top 50 Most Reputable European Brands-2006