

PRESS RELEASE

20 May 2022

New book by author Costas P. Kataras : "Silent New World"

Kataras reveals how the double edge sword of technology will impact humanity.

The new book by Costas Kataras was released last week titled "Silent New World - In search of the new normality in the Post-democracy era". (Pages 400).

In this third book, the author examines, among other things, how modern man was led to passivity, to a big sleep, and today, pressed by technological developments, may end up becoming insignificant socially, economically, culturally and politically. Developments that create a world increasingly reliant on technology, and its double-edged sword, while society is struggling every day to have control over our digital lives and make informed responsible choices.

- The new book by Costas P. Kataras, constitutes an interesting interdisciplinary approach, from mathematics and algorithms / A.I., to psychoanalysis and economics, and from robots to genetic engineering, in order to introduce us the materials from which our new world is made.

This, through a technological reality that Kataras approaches with a critical eye, which, however, can also work as an awakening for man.

A look that describes not only what we are at risk of, but also what opportunities and challenges open up before us. And, above all, that reminds us of the need and ability that humanity has to overcome challenges courageously, to move forward and create a better world, despite the ominous predictions.

It may also be an invitation to overcome obstacles, in line with the well-known phrase " I'm a pessimist because of intelligence, but an optimist because of will. "
